I have been personally acquainted with every Governor from Hardin to the present incumbent. Charles H. dictate and deminate city politics, but the country Democracy will repudiate any such effort.

"I believe now, as I have said perhaps a thousand times before, that since Mis souri's return to Democratic control thirty years ago it has been the best-governed State in the Union. We have done what other States have not been able to do, namely, lowered our taxes and paid our debts at the same time, and built up the finest system of public schools and public institutions to be found in all this broad land. It is also a matter of pride that the Executive Board of the State Government has never been open to any just charge of fraud, peculation or embeszlement. The whole thirty years of Democratic ascendancy have been a period of honest and faltiful administration. But in at least one end of the legislative branch certain abuses have crept. The lobby has been too powerful and thousand-dollar bills have circulated too freely among people whose salary was supposed to be only $5 per day.

REFORM NEEDED. REFORM NEEDED.

"Who shall say that this does not demand reform? To my personal knowledge we have in every campaign for the last we have in every campaign for the last dozen years promised the people to drive the lobby out of Jefferson City. An honest effort has been made to do so, But has it succeeded? Who is there to deny that the exposures of corruption in St. Louis and Jefferson City has created a new issue in the minds of the people? You say it is not an issue because there is nobody to champion the boodiers' cause. No, not even the boss boodier himself will do it openly.

even the boss boodler himself will do it openly.

"But I will show you where the issue is. There are really several issues involved. Who exposed these frauds and all this corruption? The evidence and the confessions of the guilty shows that they had been going on for twelve years at least and probably longer.

"It was Folk who exposed it, and it would be a grievous blow to the Democracy if it falled to promote him. It must and I believe it will be done. If we had such a man, one that has accomplished what Folk has accomplished, we could carry Kansas, Illinois, New York, Iowa and even Massachusetts."

Mr. Vandiver was cheered repeatedly. Resolutions were adopted calling for a county primary and indorsing Cockrell for President.

This eliminates the possibility of a reess between the two sessions and opporunity for the President to renew his civil and military recess appointments. Such appointments as have not been confirmed by the Senate during the extra session must be renewed simply in the form of nominations, which in effect are out recommendations and do not become effective in any case until confirmed by the Senate.

In effect, this action will remove General Leonard Wood from his present rank of Major General, to which the Senate ias not confirmed him, to the rank of Brigadier General, which he held prior to August 8 last.

It also will reduce, in like manner, 167 army officers, who were promoted repectively to fill the vacancles caused by the promotion of General Wood.

The important civil appointments affected include William D. Crum, as Collector of Customs at Charleston, S. C.; Charles P. McClelland, as a member of the Board of General Appraisers of Merchandise at New York, and T. V. McAllister of Vicksburg, Miss., as receiver of public moneys, all of whom are serving under recess appointments, the effect being to vacate their present positions. CRUM'S POSITION MAY REMAIN VACANT.

As Collector Crum's recess appointment has thus been terminated, and the situation in the Senate has been such that his confirmation is despaired of, the collectorship of the port of Charleston will remain vacant until the expiration of the next session of Congress, unless the President selects some one else for this place and the nomination is confirmed by the

In the absence of such a movement, the Speaker said he should not interfere in any way in the expiration of the extra session by constitutional limitations.

SPLITS A FEW HAIRS. At the War Department the officials are not quite so clear in their minds as to the exact status of the military officers whose iominations have failed of confirmation There is a disposition to take the point of view that between the expiration of the present session and the beginning of the regular session there will necessarily be an appreciable but practically indefinitely small period of time when there is no session, and consequently Congress is technically in recess, and it would be within the power of the President at any time after Monday noon to make recess appointments to continue during the next ession, until otherwise disposed of.

The officials are not united as yet in their view upon this point, but the new nominations which are now being made out at the War Department to those which lapsed are all to be dated as of the time the vacancy occurred. It seems possible that the complex questions in-volved may require the decision of the Attorney General.

ROOSEVELT WILL STAND BY WOOD.

Hanna's Opposition Without Effect on President's Effort to Advance Brigadier.

NO FAIR WEATHER FRIEND.

Appointment of Governor General to Succeed Brooke Made by McKinley on Recommendation of Root.

EPUBLIC SPECIAL. Washington, Dec. 5.-President Roose velt has to-day and heretofore given friends who have talked with him to understand that he is a friend of General Wood, whose confirmation as Major General is being fought in the Senate, and that he will stand by him to the end. He does not wish any one to think that because influential men like Senator Hanna are opposing General Wood he will withdraw a friendship that has existed a number of years, or a support that he believes to be based upon merit. The President says he has no intention of withdrawing the nomination, and points out in talking a Brigadler General by President McKin-

with friends that General Wood was made a Brigadler General by President McKinley, each time, it is stated, for merit and on the recommendation of his superiors. Secretary Root regarded it essential both to the interests of Cuba and to those of the United States that a change should be made in the office of Governor General of Cuba.

After considering the matter at length he recommended to President McKinley that General Wood be named to succeed General Brooke. On that recommendation and after personal investigation of the subject. President McKinley appointed Wood Governor General.

That was the situation, it is said, when Roosevelt assumed the presidency. In due course he nominated General Wood to be a Major General, following, it is asserted, absolutely the line of seniority. He did not "jump" him over any other officer in the service.

When General Wood returned from Cuba he voluntarily requested that he be given active service, preferably in the Philippines. To this request the President and Secretary of War acceded, and General Wood was made commander of the Department of Mindanao, his particular task being to subdue the warlike Moros, who still keep him busy.

Concerning the pending inquiry into General Wood's record, now being made by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, the President has let it be understood that he is taking no part. It is a matter which he regards as belonging exclusively to the Senate. He is quite willing to have the nomination considered in connection with General Wood's record, as shown on the files of the War Department.

It has about been decided to abandon the International Medical Congress, which was planned in connection with the World's Fair next year. tion That Best Fits for Life."

Doctor Taylor referred to the influence of education in developing the material resources of a country and in contributing to the comforts and enjoyments of life.

"The old education that makes the teaching of subjects the end of school-room work is fast giving place to the new," said Doctor Taylor, "which makes the development of the child its chief end. Capacity to handle capital rather than capital itself should be the endowment given to the child.

"All of the activities of the child should be cultivated, but the crowning activity is the thin ting activity, the mere showing of facts and figures count little in an education. It is rather the power to use facts facts and figures count little in an educa-tion. It is rather the power to use facts and figures that accomplishes much in this world. There are three old-fashioned edu-cational virtues that characterize the ideal thinking activity; accuracy, rapidity and cational virtues that characterize the ideal thinking activity; accuracy, rapidity and farsightedness.

"A man's method of thinking is easily revealed by his method of doing, particularly of doing those things he makes his life work. The lack of accuracy in general in every trade and profession is as evident as it is deplorable. Its origin is easily found in the home and in the schoolroom. "Business men are constantly complaining of the want of accuracy and adaptability in the products of our public schools. The young man who is trained to do everything well will sooner or later succeed anywhere.

"Farsightedness is a comprehensive term, involving keen perception, ready memory, fertile imagination, accurate judgment. It promptly apprehends the complex elements in a problem and makes greater spread in its solution possible. Its development may be slow, but its attainment is worth the time and labor required; for instance the achievements in science, in the mechanic arts, in the business world.

"These three characteristics of thinking and doing so essential to success become habits and character only through long and careful training at every step in the house and school life. Right thinking and right doing, increased rapidity in doing, should be daily uppermost in the mind of teacher and pupil. Both are made possible by a systematic organization and a systematic or logical representation of the subject in each branch taught."
